CCPL HOSTS RVA ENVIRONMENTAL FILM FESTIVAL

CHESTERFIELD COUNTY, VA — Chesterfield County Public Library will host two films during as part of its RVA Environmental Film Festival—a short film called “Local Flowers, Local Farmers: A Growing American Movement” and the award-winning documentary “A Blooming Business.” The program is on Wednesday, Feb. 7, 6:30-8 p.m., at the North Courthouse Road Library, 325 Courthouse Rd, Richmond, 23234.

“Local Flowers, Local Farmers: A Growing American Movement” focuses on the growth of the local cut flower movement. The film highlights the impact of buying flowers grown outside of one’s environment. The documentary “A Blooming Business” depicts the lives of Kenyans imprisoned by the global flower industry.

A question and answer session with a cut flower gardener will follow the films. For more information, visit library.chesterfield.gov or call 804-751-CCPL.
